EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

Archbold Biological Station, Venus, Florida

Director of Education. Jan. 2019 – Present

Education Coordinator. Jan. 2013 – Dec. 2018

Archbold Biological Station is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to research, conservation, and education in the headwaters of the Florida Everglades.

- Report to Executive Director and serve on Executive Team.
- Engage with stakeholders and community groups to reach a broad cross-section of the local population and ensure culturally relevant and inclusive content.
- Develop, facilitate, and oversee public facing education programs, including: Ecology Summer Camps, the Elementary School Program, private ecology tours, offsite presentations, live-streamed and pre-recorded educational videos, and more.
- Mentor environmental education interns and manage ~70 volunteers annually.
- Serve as lead on improving diversity, equity, and inclusion within the organization.
- Expand the reach of our programs by working with education, conservation, and science partners at the local, state, and national levels.
- Worked with National Geographic to organize and facilitate a photo camp for indigenous, Black, and rural teens.
